

Ideas that set industry standards

Many of our professionals have established an excellent reputation for their exceptional ability to develop Open Source software, and to apply creative ideas and collaboration methods. As committers of the Apache software community they are actively involved in the development of path breaking technologies and future standards for the IT industry.

With the vision of Open Source and the excellence of our team, BeCompany decided to found a company that supports the whole life cycle of open source software development. We all have one goal in mind: to benefit our customers, which is why we founded our own company to help create the future!

Our team has constantly pushed the boundaries of what can be accomplished by using Java, J2EE and XML technologies. Open standards are our governing philosophy, and we share this vision with the Apache Software Foundation.

Management